The senator also accused administenancing the appropriation of hundreds of millions for other purposes which, he said, might be dispensed with.

Fails to See Economy

"Despite the earnest plea for economy and retrenchment of the President and the secretary of the treasury," Senator McCumber said, "this congress has swept aside their recommendations and has pent not millions but hundreds of millions in new fields of government enterprise. Moreover intends to appropriate millions

"Now the question is whether we should postpone these appropriations, as we can do conveniently, or slight the great moral obligation we owe our soldiers. It is my opinion that we cannot afford to postpone our duty to these boys."

Senator McCumber chided Secretary Mellon for delaying his effort to de feat the bill until it came up for consideration, He also asserted that Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey had written the secretary for his views on the subject to allow him to state his opposition to it. Objections Late in Coming.

"The secretary's letter," the senator said, "was suddenly injected into the matter a long time after the bill was favorably reported by the senate finance committee. "It would have been more pleasing at least to the committee if the secretary had presented his objections while the committee was considering the bill, instead of waiting until this late date."

Smuts' Efforts Bring Renewed Hope of Settlement of the Irish Trouble.

MAY CUIT "REPUBLIC" IDEA

De Valera and Others Show Disposition to Yield-No Improvement in Near Eastern Mess-Germany Expects Coup d'Etat-Tariff Fight Is On.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

The entry of Jan Christian Smuts into the peace negotiations changed the Irish situation over night. The South African premier is regarded as one of the most astute statesmen in the world, and apparently Lloyd George has done well in enlisting his assistance. It now appears likely that a peaceful settlement of the Irish trouble will be reached before long.

Optimistic person, were not dismayed by De Valera's tentative refusal to attend the meeting in London proposed by Lloyd George and Sir James Craig's refusal to corfer with the Sinn Feiners and south Ireland unionists in Dublin. The latter conference was begun without representatives of Ulster, and an attempt was made to reconcile the positions of the Sinn Fein and the unionists. Then General Smuts slipped across to Dublin, gave the leaders there a heart-to-heart talk, and hurried back to London to report to the English authorities. What he told them gave rise to the most cheerful of predictions.

Though no official statements have been issued, it appears that this is how matters now stand: The British government is willing to grant to Ireland the fullest autonomy, patterned after that enjoyed by South Africa; Ulster to be considered still a part of the dominion but having an autonomous government of its own, such as that of Natal. "President" De Valera, Arthur Griffith, founder of Sinn Fein; Michael Collins and other republican "as decided last October he must pay leaders are now willing that Ireland the Dutch government. lead remain a part of the British empire—though they prefer the term "British commonwealth of nations"provided their right of secession is recognized. Other prominent Sinn Feiners, comprising the intellectuals and doctrinaires, insist Prime Minister Lloyd George has not yet sufficiently recognized the essential unity of Ireland and its right to self-determination. All the Sinn Feiners assert that Ulster must accept her autonomy from the supreme Irish parliament in Dublin. The task that remains is to reconian, to destroy the entire town. A cile these views and bring the Ulsteragreement with the compromise plan. That this can be done is the expressed opinion of some of the chief figures in the negotiations.

Says General Smuts: "I think, I an hopeful, I trust, that the question will be solved and that thereby the British empire will be freed from the imputa-United Kingdom there still exists vioupon which the empire rests. I say that the problem is soluble because have seen it solved in my own coun try under circumstances less embittered than in Ireland but certainly of a very difficult character, too."

De Valera, in his first authorized statement since Lloyd George's invitation, says: "We trust that the British prime minister's letter may prove to be the first step toward submitting a civilized basis of right and reason for that of barbaric violence in the arbitration of the question at issue between Ireland and Great Britain.

"Should the conference now initiated lead to an ultimate understanding and lasting peace between the peoples of these two islands, which have been in a state of war, or suspended war, for more than seven and a half centuries, it will set a worthy Christian precedent for the entire world.

British prestige will be restored, young Ireland will live in history as having saved, by its courage and steadfastness, the ideals for which millions were led to offer their lives in the great war."

As significant, perhaps, as these statements was an incident in Liverpool. The city was decorated in honor of a visit of the prince of Wales, and in the Irish quarter were displayed many Sinn Fein flags intertwined with the union jacks. A prominent Sinn Beiner said: "The order to do that came from Dublin."

From this side of the world it looks as though the great powers do not know what to do with Turkey and the Turks. If they have any definite policy it isn't apparent from either their statements or their actions. The Treaty of Sevres already is shot to pieces, even if the men who formulated it are unwilling to admit it. Turkey was neatly partitioned, but refuses to stay in parts, and the nations to whom the helpings were as-

TWO CHICAGOANS

THAT CONFRONT A. D. LASKER AND CHARLES G. DAWES.

Chief of the Budget, Calling Attention to Niggardliness of Congress, Gets Help From the Army and Volunteer Business Men.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington,-When the new chief of the shipping board entered on his duties he appeared grateful because the press of the country had set forth the extreme difficulties of the work which he was to undertake. It does not take a long memory to recall that the shipping board since its organization has had various kinds of troubies to upset it.

A man who takes hold of a government job with the chances of failure, from the very physical aspects of the case, fully equaling the chances of success, is, of course, grateful if the country knows that he must work loyally and hard in order to overcome, and that if he shall fail it will not be altogether from lack of trying.

The country has been pretty well informed concerning the specific duties which confront the new chief of the budget, Charles G. Dawes, formerly a brigadier general in charge in France of purchases and supplies for the American army. Like his fellow Chicagoan, A. D. Lasker, the chairman of the shipping board, Mr. Dawes, has let the country know that he also has a hard job ahead of him.

In his statement to the public concerning his new work, Mr. Dawes took occasion virtually to charge congress with niggardliness in making an appropriation for the new budget office. He gave the amount of the appropriation, outlined the necessities in the case, and then said that so far as proffered implements were concerned! for proper conduct of his work, he was about as badly off as a man who was given a "toothpick and told to tunnel Pike's Peak.

Mr. Dawes went to work on his new job. In order to put it through with the limited paid force at his command, he must be given the aid of all the 1923, and as congress makes the appropriations for these expenditures, at months' time.

Mr. Dawes brought to Washington Adv.

NURSES TRAINING SCHOOL of Berea College Hospital

The College Hospital Training School for nurses has discontinued the shorter course which has been given in former years and from now on will give only the three years course, which fits its graduates for the State examination and the degree of R.N.

This course offers a splendid opportunity to young women who wish to put their lives into a work which is highly remunerative and at the same time gives the privileges of unselfish service for one's fellowmen. The profession of nursing has come to be considered one of the most honored as well as the most profitable callings open to women. Graduate nurses are in great demana both for private duty and to take charge of hospitals all over the country; and any young woman holding her degree of R.N. is practically assured of a position at once.

The young women who have the privilege of taking this course are the most highly favored of all Berea students. They receive all their ordinary expenses, including board, room, laundry, three uniforms a year, and textbooks. There is also abundant opportunity for high class entertainments and outdoor recreation at almost no cost. All the advantages offered by this great institution are open to the student nurses as they are to all the students of other departments.

There are only ten places open for the fall class, which begins when the college opens in September, and those wishing to join would do well to send in their applications at once.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Samson and Sarah Tray-lor, with their two children, Josiah and Beiney, travel by wagon from their home in Vergennes, Vt., to the West, the land of plenty. Their destination is the Coun-try of the Sangamon, in Illinois.

CHAPTER II.—At Niagara Falls they meet a party of minigrants, among them a youth named John McNeil, who also decides to go to the Sangamon country. All of the party suffer from fever and ague. Sarah's ministrations save the life of a youth, Harry Needles, in the last stages of fever, and he accompanies the Traylors. They reach New Salem, Illinois, and are welcomed by young "Abe" Lincole.

CHAPTER III.—Among the Traylors' first acquaintances are Lincoln's friends, Jack Kelso and his pretty daughter Bim, 16 years of age.

CHAPTER IV.—Samson decides to locate at New Salem, and begins building his house. Led by Jack Armstrong, rowdies attempt to break up the proceedings. Lincoln thrashes Armstrong, Young Harry Needles strikes Bap McNoil, of the Armstrong crowd, and McNoil threatens vengeance.

In a letter to his father Samson writes:

"Abe was working at my elbow. I saw him drop his hammer and get up and make for the ladder. I knew something was going to happen and I followed him. In a minute everyone was off the roof and out of the building. I guess they knew what was coming. The big lad stood there swinging his arm and yelling like an Injun. It was a big arm and muscled and corded up some, but I guess if I'd shoved the calico off mine and held it up he'd a pulled down his sleeve. I didn't know just how good a man Abe was and I was kind o' scairt for a minute. I never found it so hard work to do nothin' as I did then. Honest, my hands kind o' ached. "In a second the two men were locked together. Armstrong had lunged at Abe with a yell. There was no friendship in the way he took hold. He was going to do all the damage he could in any way he could. Half drunk, Jack is a man who would bite guson and Martin Waddell were sityour ear off. It was no rassle; it was a fight. Abe moved like lightning. the counter with his legs hanging off. He acted awful limber greased. In a second he had got hold of the feller's neck with his big right hand and hooked his left into the cloth on his hip. In that way he held him off and shook him as you've seen our dog shake a woodchuck. Abe's blood was hot. If the whole crowd had piled on him I guess he would have come out all right, for when he's roused there's something in Abe more than bones and muscles. I suppose it's what I feel when he speaks a piece. It's a kind of lightning. I guess it's what our minister used to call the power of the spirit.

"A friend of the bully jumped in and tried to trip Are. Harry Needles stood beside me. Before I could move he dashed forward and hit that feller in the middle of his forehead and knocked him flat. Harry had hit Bap McNoll, the cock fighter. I got up pext to the kettle then and took the scum off it. Fetched one of them devils a slap with the side of my hand that took the skin off his face and rolled him over and over. When I looked again Armstrong was going limp. His mouth was open and his tongue out. With one hand fastened to his right leg and the other on the nape of his neck Abe lifted him at arm's length and gave him a toss in the air. Armstrong fell about ten feet from where Abe stood and lay there for a minute. The fight was all out of him and he was kind of dazed and sick. Abe stood up like a giant and his face looked awful solemn.

"'Boys, if there's any more o' you that want trouble you can have some of the same piece,' he said.

"They hung their heads and not one of them made a move or said a word.

Abe went to Armstrong and helped him up. "'Jack, I'm sorry that I had to hurt you,' he said. 'You get on to your horse and go home. "'Abe, you're a better man than me," said the bully, as he offered his hand to Abe. 'I'll do anything you say.'" warm blooded for the harness. He was for the day of the plumed knight -not for these times. No man of sense would use a prancing horse on a plow or a stone boat. A good plow horse is a beautiful thing. The play of his muscles, the power of his stride are poetry to me, but when he tries to put on style he is ridiculous. That suggests what rhetoric is apt to do to untrained intellect. If you've anything to say or write, head straight across the field and keep your eye on the furrow." In the last diary of Samson Henry Traylor is this entry: "I went to Gettysburg with the President today and sat near him, when he spoke. Mr. Everett addressed the crowd for an hour or so. As Kelso would say 'He rode the prancing steed of Rhetoric.' My old friend went straight across the field. When he finished, the field, plowed and harrowed and fertilized by war, had been sowed for all time. The spring's work was done and well done."

At a quarter of ten the doctor rose

"We're keeping Abe from his sleep and wearing the night away with philosophy. I'm going home."

"I came over to see if you could find a man to help me tomorrow," Samson said to Abe. "Harry is going over to do the chinking alone. I want a man to help me on the whipsaw while I cut some boards for the upper flooring." "I'll help you myself," Abe proposed.

"I reckon I'll close the store tomorrow unless Jack will tend it." "You can count on me," said Jack. "I'm short of sleep anyhow and a day of rest will do me good." Abe went with his friends to the door beyond which the two boys from Clary's Grove sat as if sound asleep. It is probable, however, that they had heard what Samson had said to Abe.

Next morning Abe and Samson set out for the woods soon after daylight. "I like that boy Harry," said Abe. 'I reckon he's got good stuff in him. The way he landed on Bap McNoll was a caution. I like to see a feller come right up to the scratch, without an invitation just in the nick o' time, as he did. That boy is a likely young colt-strong and limber and well put together and broad between the eyes.'

"An' gentle as a kitten," Samson added. "There never was a better face on a boy or a better heart behind it. We like him."

"Yes, sir. He's a well topped young tree-straight and sound and good timber. Looks as if that little girl o' Jack's was terribly took up with him. I don't wonder."

"What kind of a girl is she?" Samson asked.

"Awful shy since the arrow hit her. She don't know what it means yet. She'll get used to that, I reckon. She's a good girl and smart as a steel trap."

Harry Needles went whistling up the road toward the new house with sickle, hoe and trowel. As he passed the Kelso cabin he whistled the tune of "Sweet Nightingale." It had haunted his mind since he had heard it in the woods. He whistled as loudly as ever he could and looked at the windows. Before he had passed, Bim's face looked out at him with a smile and her hand flickered back of the panes and he waved his to her. His heart beat fast as he hurried along.

"I'm not so very young." he said to himself. "I wish I hadn't put on these old clothes. Mrs. Traylor is an awful nice woman but she's determined to make me look like a plow horse. I don't see why she couldn't let me wear decent clothes."

Sarah had enjoyed mothering the His health had returned. His cheeks were ruddy, his dark eyes clear and bright, his tall form erect and sturdy.

He had helped Alexander Ferguson with the making of the fireplace and knew how to mix the mortar. He worked with a will, for his heart was in the new home. It was a fine September morning. The far reaches of the great, grassy plain were dimmed with haze. It was a vast, flowery wilderness, waving and murmuring in the breeze like an ocean. How long those acres, sown by the winds of heaven, had waited for the plowman now arrived!

Harry felt the beauty of the scene but saw and enjoyed more the face of Bim Kelso as he worked and planned his own house-no cabin, but a man sion like that of Judge Harper in the village near his old home. He had filled every crevice in the rear wall and was working on the front when heard the thunder of running horses and saw figures, dim in a cloud of dust, flying up the road He thought of the threat of again. Bap McNoll. It occurred to him that he would be in a bad way alone with those ruffians if they were coming for revenge. He thought of running toward the grove, which was a few rods from the rear door of the house, and hiding there. He couldn't bear to Bim and all the rest of them would hear of it. So with the sickle in his right hand he stood waiting inside the house and hoping they wouldn't stop. They rode up to the door and dismounted quietly and hobbled their horses. There were five of them who crowded into the cabin with McNoll in the lead.

"Now, you young rooster, you're goin' to git what's comin' to you," he growled. The boy faced them bravely and warned them away with his sickle. They were prepared for such emergencies. One of them drew a bag of bird shot from his pocket and hurled it at Harry's head. It hit him full in the face and he staggered against the wall stunned by the blow. They rushed upon the boy and disarmed and bore him to the floor. For a little fine he knew not what was passin When he came to, his hands and feet were tied and the men stood near cursing and laug,hing, while their leader, McNoll, was draining a bottle. Suddenly he heard a voice trembling with excitement and wet with tears saying:

"You go 'way from here or I'll kill you dead. So help me God I'll kill you. If one o' you touches him he's goin' to die."

He saw Bim Kelso at the window with her gun leveled at the head of McNoll. Her face was red with anger. Her eyes glowed. As he looked a tear welled from one of them and trailed down the scarlet surface of her cheek McNoll turned without a word and walked sulkily out of the back door. The others crowded after him. They ran as soon as they had got out of the door. She left the window. In a moment the young men were galloping away. Bim came into the house sobbing with emotion but with her head erect. She stood her gun in a corner and knelt by the helpless boy. He was erying also. Her hair fell upon his face as she looked at the spot of deep scarlet color made by the shot bag. She kissed it and held her cheek against his and whispered: cry. It's all over now. I'm going to cut these ropes."

It was as if she had known and loved him always. She was race young mother with her first child. Tenderly she wiped his tears away with her blond, silken hair. She cut his bonds and he rose and stood before her. Her face changed like

"Oh what a fool I've been!" she exclaimed "Why so?" he asked.

"I cried and I kissed you and we never have been introduced to each She covered her eyes with her hair

"I'll never forget that kiss as long as I live," said the boy as he followed her. "I'll never forget your help or your crying either," "Go away from me-I won't speak to you," she said. "Go back to your work. I'll stay here and keep watch." The boy returned to his task pointing up the inside walls but his mind and heart were out in the sunlight talking with Bim. Once he looked out of the door and saw her leaning against the neck of the pony, her face hidden in his mane. When the sun was low she came to the door and said: "You had better stop now and go home."

She looked down at the ground and

"Please, please, don't tell on me. "Of course not," he answered. "But I hope you won't be afraid of me any more.

She looked up at him with a little smile. "Do you think I'm afraid of you?" she asked as if it were too absurd to be thought of. She unhitched and mounted her pony but did not go. "I do wish you could raise a mustache," she safd, looking wistfully into his face. "I can't bear to see you look so terribly young; you get worse and worse every time I see you. I want you to be a regular man right quick."

Germany, still apprehensive that she is to lose out in Upper Silesia, is crying "wolf" again. The country is warned of an impending coup d'etatand the allies are permitted to overhear the warning. The story, as it comes from Berlin, is that all the reactionary elements are prepared to march on Berlin and upset the government, and that the decision against German possession of Upper Silesia is to be the signal for movement. The German irregular forces were withdrawn from the disputed territory, in accordance with the agreement with the inter-allied commission, but they have not disbanded or disarmed, nor have they moved far from the Silesian border. These troops are commanded by monarchists, and it is reported that General von der Goltz, who led the Baltic expedition and also was mixed up in the Kapp revolution, is now in Upper Silesia. A few days ago the German population of Beuthen, in Upper Silesia, was making a hostile demonstration against the Poles and when the French troops tried to disperse the marchers, the latter fired on them, killing a French major. The present German government really seems to be increasing in strength, and the confidence reposed in it by the allied governments is growing daily. That is, the confidence that it will carry out the terms of the treaty as far as possible. In a public address last week, Doctor Rathenau, minister of reconstruction, said:

"The United States is the world's chief creditor and Germany is the world's chief debtor, with all other nations sandwiched in between these two as creditor and debtor assions, each tied to or obligated to one another.

Our State department is now busying itself with the preliminaries for negotiating treaties that will make effective the peace with the central powers and restore diplomatic and other relations. Administration authorities give assurance that nothing will be done that will disturb the cordial relations existing between the United States and the allied powers, which presumably means that they are being taken into the confidence of this government in the formulation of the treaties on which Secretary Hughes is working.

> The inevitable battle over the tariff was opened by a minority report from the Democratic members of the ways and means committee of the house. The bill as drafted is denounced as a "conspiracy to benefit a few favorites at the expense of all humanity." The report deals especially with the probable effect of the bill on American commerce and with the substitution of the system of American valuation as a basis for levying tariff duties. Calling attention to the fact that the foreign trade of the United States fell from $1,188,255,449 last July to $527,378,825 in May, 1921, the report says: \

This is the measure that is designed to provide proper care and adequate compensation for disabled soldiers and sailors through the co-ordination of relief agencies. Congress has been severely criticized for delay in passing the bill, which is the fruit of the efforts of the Dawes commission; and a senate investigating committee has been hearing testimony of the scandalous neglect and inhuman treatment of disabled veterans under the present complicated system-or rather lack of system.

Peace With Germany

A resolution of Congress declaring peace with Germany was signed by President Harding late July 2, 1921, nearly three years after the signing of the armistice. The house vote on the resolution was 263 to 59 and the Senate vote 38 to 19.

The United States could not see its way clear to join in the Treaty of Versailles signed by the Allied nations. By this time it is easy to see that to have done so would have been a serious mistake.

The fact that we did not enter into any terms of peace with Germany earlier has this decided advantage that it kept us from hasty and passionate action in the matter. We had time to draw a second breath. In doing so we find that the Germany with which we made peace is not the Germany against which we declared war.

That Germany was a mighty militaristic empire. The present Germany has a standing army of 100,000 men and practically no navy. This is less armament in proportion to their population than that of France, England, or the United States.

The present Germany has reduced her army and navy appro priations $500,000,000 a year, and is turning that amount into productive industry. While this was not originally her own choice, she has now made it her own choice.

On the other hand her smaller neighbor, France, is maintaining an army of 800,000 men, but, as we are told, with no militaristic aspiration. And in England and in the United States the good people are reluctant to reduce the army and the navy.

The present Germany has returned to the peaceful pursuits of industry. Last year her ninety automobile factories exported 20,-000 automobiles. Her dye industries are turning out 5,000 tons of dyestuffs a year.

A delegation of English business men toured Germany recently. They did not find an idle acre of ground nor a man out of work in the nation. The working men are clamorinig for longer work-hours. The output of the railroad shops is far less than the demand. In England, so this same commission reported, there is discontent, idleness, and listlessness. In the United States the army of the unemployed is large and steadily increasing, so that conditions are really alarming. Charles M. Schwab is reported to have said that we "with everything on our hands are allowing Germany to win the peace thru the efforts of her labor."

In our own country there are seventeen percent illiterates, mostly native born whites, while in Germany there are less than one-third of one percent illiterates-that is, for every illiterate German we have more than fifty.

The first thing we know Germany will again lead the world as she did for decades in the past.

If we want to be among the leaders of the world, we must lead in the pursuits of peace, in education, in industry, in disarmament. Merely to lead in war is no worthy distinction.

One immediate result of the establishment of peace with Germany will be the resumption of diplomatic relations and the consequent reopening of trade, which will prove advantageous to the United States as well as Germany. Another result will be the withdrawal of the American forces in Germany at the earliest possible date, probably within a month. This army of occupation has so far cost about $275,000,000. Of this amount Germany paid about $3,000,000. The balance came out of our treasury. Will the taxpayers object to the stopping of this national leakage?

THE PRIVY GOES TO THE WELL

It is human and natural to wish to live as long as possible, and to live as nearly free from pain as possible. It is natural and proper that people should care for their children, and wish their children to be healthy and useful. It is also characteristic of decent people to abhor filth. But the lives and health of many people and their children in Berea are in serious danger because some of them are ignorant of certain conditions; some are too lazy or too stingy to remedy certain conditions, and some thru lack of decency are indifferent to these conditions.

This article is written to set forth these conditions, and to call the attention of the people to the urgent necessity of correcting them.

At the expense of the State Government, water from 46 wells in Berea has been examined; 20 of these wells, or 43.4% were found to contain colon bacilli. Colon bacilli comes only from the intestines of human beings, and from the intestines of certain animals. The presence of colon bacilli in a well means the presence of manure (usually human) in that well. Of all people who have typhoid fever, about four in every hundred who recover, carry typhoid germs thruout the remainder of their lives, and pass millions of them with every bowel movement. Therefore it follows that any well that contains colon bacilli is likely to be, or to become contaminated with typhoid germs at any time. few months, and each case has been traced to one of these polluted wells. In practically all cases it is carried over the surface of the ground for a short distance from open privies.

Commander Emery, as are all Legionnaires, is much interested in the work soon to be undertaken of recruitng the reserves of the army, and in forwarding a pact of lasting good will between the civilians who fought in the last war and the officers and men of the regular army.

Mr. Emery was wounded in the left arm in France, so badly wounded that he has comparatively little use of the injured member today. He regrets apparently that this physical disabil ity prevents him from accepting a com mission in the reserves of the Uniter States army.

I had a talk with Commander Emery. He spoke as one Leg on member to another. He epitomized the lesson which I think it is the desire of the American Legion officials to see fulfilled in spirit and in truth in the ranks of the former soldiers.

Would Be Soldier Citizens.

He said, "We were known as citizen oldiers; I hope that we will be known now as soldier citizens." This breathes the spirit of the service which seems to be in the hearts of the Legionnaires roday.

American Legion officials are inter ested deeply in the recent legislation which cuts the American army to : force of 150,000 men. Of course he Legion man thinks that an army of this size is sufficient for the needs of the republic, even in peace times. They feel also that the cut reflects whn to the Legionnaires seems to be the selfish feeling of the law makersthat if war comes, and there is not at adequate first line of defense force the regular army, the men "who did it before" will instantly be will ng to do it again.

Of course, as the ex-soldiers seen to view it, the men of the Legion and of other veteran organizations patriotically will offer their services to do it again, but nevertheless there is a feel ing that the million young men who come to military age every year in this republic, and the vast crowd of slack ers in the last war, might be compelled if unhappily war should come, to take on a part of the first burden which the belief is, will be certain to fall under coming conditions to the lot of the former fighters to assume.

When it was proposed under the last administration to maintain a regula army of 280,000, the proportion of 17, 000 commissioned officers was fixed as being proper. The army has been reduced to 150,000 men, 130,000 less than the number originally contemplated. Now it is said that congress possibly may legislate a large number of regular army officers out of their commissions.

Fight Against Fewer Commissions.

It can be said from first knowledge that the War department, and this of course means the administration, will resist any attempt to deprive some thousands of young Americans of their are today 13,000 such commissioned of 280,000 men was made. A large number of officers, the authorities say, must be assigned to duty (v. 26). The believers at Jerusalem in connection with the reserves, the National Guard, the army schools, and to staff work. The authorities hold that there would be a crippling of the service if congress should take the action of reduction which it has been suggested it may attempt.

The War department is not slow to point out the justice side of the matter. The department is borne out by the records when it says that there was an appeal made by the government of the United States to young men to enter the regular army as officers and to make the service their life work. As a result hundreds upon hundreds of them gave over good paying positions in civil life and entered the army in response to the call

Lincoln Statue Put Back.

Sentiment in Washington has compelled the return to its former site of the staute of Abraham Lincoln which stood in front-of the district court building facing John Marshall place. There was objection (v. 29). He was not content to merely to the statue because it was said to be inartistic. Perhaps it was, but it boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus was the first statue of Lincoln which was put up in the capital city, and for years was the only one. Sentiment hovered about it and now it is to be put back in the place from which adverse criticism caused its re-

However, the statue looks like Lincoln and the pose of the figure is true to life, and therefore perhaps ought to be appealing even to an artist.

SAUL PROCLAIMS JESUS AS THE CHRIST

LESSON TEXT-Acts 9:19b-30. GOLDEN TEXT-Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Nving God.-Matt 16:16. REFERENCE MATERIAL - Acts 18:

PRIMARY TOPIC-Saul Telling Others

JUNIOR TOPIC-Saul Winning Others INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC Getting Ready for a New Career.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC

I. Saul Preaching Christ in Damas. cus (vv. 19b-22).

Saul Begins His Ministry

After Saul was baptized he remained ertain days with the believers in Danascus (v. 19b). How beautiful to think of the transformation which ook place !- one who was so passionately bent on the destruction of the disciples was now enjoying fellowship with them. 1. Straightway preaching in the synagogue (v. 29.) Saul, like every one who is really converted, begins to tell of the newly found Savior. Every Chrislap should be taught that it is his business as soon as saved to help to save others.

2. The people amazed (v. 21). They knew that the very one who had been ringleader in persecuting the Christians in Jerusalem and had come to Damascus for the express purpose of bringing them bound to the chief priests, was now passionately advoating that which he had so vehe-ently sought to destroy. 3. The Jews confounded (v. 22), Saul etired into Arabia for three years. During this time he was taught the full truth of his mission (Gal. 1:17, 18). Saul increased in spiritual strength and confounded the Jews, proving that Jesus was not only the son of God, but their Messiah. His proof, no doubt, was by citation from the Old Testament prophecies, showing that the life, death and resurrection of Jesus exactly paralleled them. That Christ died and rose again from the dead, no one then could deny; the ransformation of Saul from a hater to an ardent witness was a proof which could not be gainsaid. II. Saul Escapes From the Jews

(vv. 23-25) He used the Scriptures with such skill that the Jews could not answer him. Finding that the argument was commission in the regular army. III. Saul Visits Jerusalem (vv. 26-

20a). This journey to Jerusalem was in fleeing for his life,

Suspected by the disciples had not heard fully about Saul's conversion. They knew nothing of his so journ in Arabia and his preaching at Damascus after his return, so they regarded him as a spy. "Part of the peraity of wrong-doing is the difficulty of restoration in the good opinion of honorable men." But it is infinitely better to be regarded with suspicion when genuinely true than to be trusted as genuine when a hypocrite.

2. Barnabas' confidence in Saul (v. 27). He was a man filled with the Holy Spirit (Acts 11:24); therefore, able to discern the reality of Saul's conversion. He was in reality a "son of consolation," and in this instance showed his kindly spirit.

3. Saul in fellowship with the disciples (v. 28). They went in and out together. Peter received him into his home, since his object in going to Jerusalem was to see Peter (Gal. 1:18). He abode with him 15 days.

4. Saul disputing with the Grecians visit with the brethren; he spoke

BALMY PEACE

In THE sylvan solitudes," said the wild man of the woods, "a man doesn't see any magazines and doesn't receive any bulletins from the health authorities, so he enjoys a peace that is never known in the busy haunts.

"There a man simply has to subscribe for a lot of magazines, as a matter of self-defense. Canvassers are after him all the time. Some of the canvassers are lone widows with many children to support, and others are energetic young men who are trying to work their way through the veterinary college. They are deserving people, and you feel it a duty to help them along, so the first thing you know your mail box is jammed full of literature. Having paid for it, you feel that you ought to read it, and your life is ruined thereby. "When I was young, the magazines tried to entertain people. They had good stories and a Poet's Corner, and a department devoted to timely jokes, and another to household hints and domestic recipes. There was some sense in reading a magazine then, for it soothed and sustained you. But nowadays the magazine editors consider it their duty to harrow your soul and make your hair stand on end like quills upon the porkful fretcupine, or words to that effect. They are always viewing with alarm, and trying to convince you that you take your life in your hand every five minutes.

"They have a lot of health specialists writing for them, and these health sharps point out that pretty near everything you eat and drink is a deadly poison. They didn't scare me to any great extent, for I am a most intrepid man, but they soon had my wife so rattled she didn't know whether she was going or coming.

"I always was passionately fond of a good cup of coffee, and my wife could make the best coffee, you ever heard of. She went to work at it like a learned apothecary compounding a prescription. There was no guess work about it. She took an honest pride in it, and her coffee was a revelation to every consumer. I used to lie awake at night wishing it was breakfast time, so I could have my morning cup of coffee.

"Dut one morning when I went to the table the coffee was missing. In its place there was a sickly beverage I had never seen before. I asked an explanation, and my wife said that no more coffee would be made in our house. 'The wonder is,' said she, 'that we still live and move and have our being, for coffee is a rank poison. If you Junkopolitan Magazine, you will see that coffee contains a large percentage of tannin, which is so deadly that if you place a drop on the tongue of an alligator, it will roll over, dead."

"I told her that I had no alligators on the premises, and consequently could not try the experiment, but I assured her that I didn't care anything about the poison. I wanted my coffee at regular hours. She said I'd have to keep on wanting. She thought too much of me to send me to an untimely grave. And, anyhow, she explained Dr. Zinkfeegle had told how to make a substitute for coffee that was perfectly wholesome. She had followed_his

Programs of this type, while not strictly educational, make summer school enjoyable and are highly worth Dear Fellow Alumni and Alumnae:

NOT MANY FEEBLE-MINDED

Authority Shows That Only Two Per Cent of the Population Can Be So Classed.

The idea that we are menaced as a nation by illiterates and feeble-minded is all wrong. We have illiterates and feeble-minded in our midst, but they are a relatively negligible force numerically. The reverse idea, or idea in the reverse, that we are short on genius, also is wrong, according to Dr. George G. Chambers, director of admissions at the University of Pennsylvania, and the educators who co-operate with him. Doctor Chambers says genius as a national crop is statistically as strong as the more discussed feebleminded and that each represents a mere 2 per cent of the population.

But genius, says Dr. Chambers, is not the mere possession of a talent swollen to phenomenal degree, perhaps so hypertrophied that it is useless. He denies genius to the man, however great his talents, who cannot and does not exercise them. Genius in his definition is high intelligence followed by actual use of that intelligence in life. And intelligence is the ability to adapt one's self to new circumstances, to one's surroundings-in a word, to be able to know something and make use of one's knowledge. Under this definition it is surprising that the adaptable Yankee should not hold a higher record for genius than 2 per cent-Patsburgh Dispatch.

instructions, and the result was before me. Perhaps it didn't taste a coffee, but it was wholesome. It would fill my veins with red corpuscles and restore hair to my bald head. It was made of marrowfat peas which had been carefully roasted in a hot oven.

"In order to get a cup of coffee after that I had to make a sneak to the cher house, and the kind dished up there made me old before my time. My wife cut out all my favorite dishes because Dr. Zinkfoogle or some other nagazine writer denounced them, and finally I was living on roasted peas offee and boiled spinach, and I concluded that if I had to feed like the ows I'd live like them, so I came to a forest fastnesses."
